What Is The WUNIC?

The Washington University Neuroimaging Community is an informal consortium that was established to join together several groups of people across the WU campus – in the Med School, on the Main Campus, and beyond – that have a shared interest in neuroimaging.

This wiki was created to help gather resources and foster communication among this group.

What Can I Find On This Site?

A running list of available resources can be found in the "Page Tree". Updates on tools and important announcements can be found in the "Blog" section.

To ensure you stay up-to-date on available tools, you can "watch" the blog (must be logged in with wustl key) to receive updates when new posts are added.
